The config file gives information about the pipeline, sometimes specific to one module. The metadata file gives information specific to each sample. This might include membership in sample groups for statistical tests, or barcode sequences for demultiplexing or the filenames from the input dirs to associate with each sample.